Sentica Partners sells Elematic to Pamplona Capital

Finnish investor group, led by private equity investor Sentica Partners, has signed a contract to sell Elematic Group Oy to a private equity fund managed by Pamplona Capital Management. The management of Elematic maintains their shareholding of the company. Sentica and other investors acquired Elematic from Consolis in August 2006, where after the company has been able to increase the revenues by tens of percents, both organically and through acquisitions, up to almost 100 MEUR, and the EBIT has more than doubled. The contract is expected to be realized by the end of October, 2007.

As one of the leading technology provider to precast concrete producers Elematic has invested strongly in expanding the product and service offering. The company serves customers locally through own service centers in Finland, Germany, the USA and now also in United Arab Emirates.

"We have been delighted with our investment in Elematic. We are proud to have supported the company as it has grown and developed fast during the past year. I have every confidence that the development will continue together with Pamplona", states Mika Uotila, managing partner of Sentica Partners.

"Along the new owner Elematic has excellent opportunities to continue to grow and further expand its market presence, especially in the Russian speaking countries" says Elematic Group's CEO Leo Sandqvist.
